ordained in 1828, and was appointed Rector of Brightstone, in the Isle of Wight, in 1830. In 1837 he was appointed select preacher before the University of Oxford; in 1839 Archdeacon of Surrey, Rector of Alverstoke, and Chaplain to Prince Albert; in 1840 Canon of Winchester Cathedral; in 1841 Barupton Lecturer; in 1844 sub-Almoner to the Queen; and in 1845 Dean of Westminster. In the last named year he was again select areacher before the University, and in November was appointed Bishop of Oxford, to which office is attached the Chancellorship of the Order of the Garter. In 1847 he was made Lord High Almoner of the Queen. He is one of the ablest debaters in the House of Lords. Beside the Lite and the Correspondence of his father, prepared by him and his brother, Bishop Wilberforce has published various works of an ecclesiastical character, which have now become standard authorities in that branch of the church which has been accustomed to look up to him as a leader and counsellor. BRILLIANT DISPLAY AND IMPOSING CEREMONIES

[From the St. Louis 1 imes, February 13.]

The marriage service was performed yesterday at St. Vincent's church, in a style of magnificence that has never been surpassed in the city, and which those who witnessed it will never forget. The altar was illuminated and decked in its richest ornaments. The most splendid vestments belonging to the church were used, and the whole edifice wore the appearance of a grand festival. Carpets were spread down the aisles of the church, and extended out on the sanctuary six clergymen were assembled, surrounded by eighteen attendants, dressed in the most gorgeous manner. The rite was performed according to the ceremonial of the Catholic church, with all the splendor and impressivenes: of its grand ceremonial of the Catholic church, with all the splendor and impressivenes: of its grand ceremonial of the Catholic church, with all the splendor and impressivenes: of its grand ceremonial of the Catholic church, with all the splendor and impressivenes: of its grand ceremonial of the Catholic church, with all the splendor and impressivenes: of its grand ceremonial of the Catholic church, with all the splendor and impressivenes: of its grand ceremonial of the Catholic church, with all the splendor and impressivenes: of its grand ceremonial of the Catholic church, with all the splendor and impressivenes: of its grand ceremonial of the Catholic church, with all the splendor and impressivenes: of its grand ceremonial of the Catholic church, with all the splendor and impressivenes: of its grand ceremonial of the Catholic church, with all the splendor and impressivenes: of its grand ceremonial of the Catholic church, with all the splendor and impressivenes. The spectators were not unworthy the occasion, for the wealth and fashion of the city were present, among whom the event has ceen the subject of daily conversation for the past two months. At 9 o'clock the bridal party arrived. As they entered the church the full organ gave forth its swelling volume of music till the windows shook in the walls. Every eye was turned toward the parties as two by two they walked slowly up the middle aisle, and exclamations of wonder and surprise at the brilliant pageant were heard on all sides. When they the bridal party reached the railing of the sanctuary, they stood for a moment, then genuficated together, and the bride and bridegroom each knelt on a beautifully worked prie Deu, which was placed at the foot of the steps. The ministers then came forward, and the bridal party advanced to the railing. Rev. Father Burke, C. M., assisted by Rev. Fathers Hennessey, C. M., and Koop, C. M., performed the service. During this interesting ceremony, profound stillness reigned throughout the church, and every ear was strained to catch the responses. They were given in a clear, audible voice, the parties knowing what they were doing, and evidencing no hesitation. The bride was dressed in most exquisite style and taste. She wore a heavy satin dress, with a long train turned with point lace, carried a bouquet of beautiful wax flowers in her hand, and over her head and reaching almost to the floor, was thrown a magnifident lace veil of point applique. This one item alone cost $900. Her lewelry was diamonds, the ear-rings being of exquisite workmanship, and costing $5000. The material alone of her dress cost $1400. The gr. om also was dressed with perfect taste. There was two bridesmaids and groomsmen, all of whom were arrayed in a manner scarcely inferior to the contracting parties. James P. Thompson, the groom, is a mulaito, and has resided in St. Louis for a number of years. He is a partner of Clamorgan, whose baths are well known, and is the owner o spectators were not unworthy the occasion, for the wealth and fashion of the city were present, among whom the event has been the subject of and is known to use her weath in a manner beneficial to all around her. She is very charitable, and the foremost in every enterprise looking toward the assistance of the needy; and has for a long time been the sole support of several poor persons. Many of those who have been the objects of her charity were in the church yesterday, and offered their good wishes for her happiness. The bride was attended by Miss Britania Kump and Miss Julia Sabadie. The groom was accompanied by Mr. C. L. de Randamie and Mr. George Randelph. As the bridal party retired from the church, the full choir sang the "Gloria" from Mozart's immortal "Twelfth Mass," and in conclusion the "Wedding March" was given in splendid style. The party intend starting at once for Europe, and will make a protracted tour on the continent.

Stephens' work on "The War Between the States" will be given to the public in a few days, and must, from the gravity of the subject and the illustrious position of the author. constitute an epoch in the political literature of the age. The dedication runs thus:

To all true friends of the Union under the Constitution of the United States, throughout their entire limits, without regard to present or past party associations; and to all true friends of constitutional liberty, the world over, now and forever—especially to all, everywhere, who may, now or hereafter, look to the federa-tive system batters. who may, now or nereatter, look to the rederative system, between neighboring free democratic States, as the surest means of saving

In our religious compilation elsewhere will be found a mysterious paragraph from the London Weekly Register, the principal Roman Catholic organ in England, forshadowing a forthcoming conversion to that church, which would cause a greater sensation than any similar event for a long while. Conjecture was rife, immediately on the publication of that announcement, as to who the eminent person could be and there were not wanting intimations in some of the secular journals that he would, in all probability, be found among the Royal family itself.

By the steamship Minnesota, which arrived here this morning, however, the mystery would seem to be explained. The Cork Examiner of the 1st inst. says: "There seems to be a general impression that the individual referred to is the Bishop of Oxford, Dr. Wilberforce, whose sympathies with ritualism are well known. We understand that a private letter has been received in this city stating distinctly, and and rachbishop Manning, is fully borneout. Eveyond all question, Dr. Wilberforce is the ablest and most distinguished man in the Church of England."

In the presence of an incident of this character, the agitation within the Episcopal Church here, growing out of the Tyng trial, and the ritualistic demonstrations at St. Albana, fade into misginificance, It will be fortunate for the established Church if the Bishop of Oxford does not carry away with him many of the lesser lights of that organization, on "May a defections would inspire all parties with a desire to settle their contentions betwen a "head into misginificance, It will be fortunate for the established Church if the Bishop of Oxford was born in 1805, and received his education at Oxford was born in 1805, and received his education at Oxford was appointed Rector of Brightstone, in the Ise of Wight, 1839.
